27 Sept. Vol.6
To "My dear Friend" (Anne W. Weston) No.15

[Ilkley, Eng.] The writer has been spending the last few weeks at Ilkley, taking the cold-water cure, which has considerably benefited her health, though it has not had much effect on her palpitations. Her thoughts turn continually to "the dear little band of devoted labourers in Boston." If she should be blessed with a renewal of health and strength, she would wish her remaining days to be dedicated to the good of her fellow creatures. Has sympathized with "dear precious Garrison" in the illness of his family. Asks the addressee's real opinion of W. L. G.'s (Garrison's) own state of health, whether she is a[illegible]hensive of dangerous disease. The writer is depressed by [illegible]hought that the two friends, Garrison and H. C. W. (Henry C. Wright) should be labouring under indisposition which may prove serious. Henry C. Wright has been travelling with Amasa Walker and they are now near Manchester. Fears that Amasa Walker's health is not much better. Has had " a pleasant little peep" at Samuel May Jr., when he passed through Darlington, and regrets that Dr. ⸢Amos?⸣ Farnsworth visit was so short. Longs, with "the dear Dublin band," to see Miss Weston, but in the writer's own region has few "who have many Old Organization predilections." Is convinced, however, that it is "gradually rising above the wounds which ⸢James Gillespie⸣ Birney & co. inflicted." Writes about contributions for [illegible] ⸢Boston⸣ fair; they are preparing a box from Glasgow. [illegible]s ⸢John A.⸣ Collins and N. P. Land's End: 1840 Sept. 26

[1840?] Stephens, M Ms.A.9.2
26 Sept. Vol.5
No.98

To Mary A. Estlin

[Lands End, England] The writer acknowledges Miss Estlin's thoughtfulness in furnishing her with many particulars. To be away from Bristol is to be away from Anti-Slavery action and interest. Reflects on how little more than sympathy is advanced to the slave, and wonders if much of this inertia may not be traced to the policy of the Broad Street Committee. Really intelligent people know so little of what is taking place in America. Has met some who were acquainted with "every thing that is going on in the world but slavery ... the greatest evil in the world." Rejoices that the report is out; trusts that th[illegible] Advocate will do still more good service, and that th[illegible]ngth of Miss Estlin's father may be equal to the strain [illegible] preparing articles for it.

To Mary A. Estlin

Ms.A.9.2
Vol.5
No.98

Regrets having missed seeing Miss Pugh. Comments on the ability of Friends to understand each other, on the doubts of Mr. «John?» Charlton; the awkward position of Mr. «Theobald?» Matthews and the advantage gained by Mr. John Scoble. Has thought much of Miss Estlin while she was in Ireland and fancied her making herself "complete mistress of the science of printing."

«Leeds, England» The writer is worried because the box sent by Garrison from Leeds has not arrived. The ladies are much disappointed, but have nevertheless again collected a few contributions for the bazaar and have sent a box directed to the addressee. This contains also 4 pounds in gold, wrapped in paper, a parcel for F. Douglass from Miss Holland, etc. The ladies would like to know if the articles in the box are suitable. They would also like to know if the addressee's purpose could not be served as well by their selling of a few smaller articles in England and sending the proceeds. The 4 pounds enclosed were ch[illegible] raised in this way.

«Headingley (near Leeds), England» The writer always pays for the Liberator in advance. Was surprised at the way «Frederick» Douglass commented on a letter from William Wells Brown on the subject of Father Henson(?). Finds Douglass' paper «the North Star» very interesting lately, containing contributions of many colored people. Says that every issue contains the name of Miss Griffith, whom Miss Estlin once characterized as "F. Douglass' evil genius," and asks if she separated him from the Garrison organization. Admires Garrison's keeping on his own course and letting Douglass take his. Asks how Miss Estlin accou[illegible]or Douglass' position. "Is he dazzled by the attention o[illegible]bers of Congress?" To William Lloyd Garrison

[Liverpool, (England)] Thanks W.L.G. for a bound volume of the Liberator for 1833. Ordered the Liberator for 1834 through Joseph Sturge. Praises the Philadelphia Declaration of Sentiments. Discusses the difficulties involved in freeing the slaves in the U.S. and the West Indies. Thinks that emancipation should be made easier. Regrets that some people are still influenced by the colonizationists' arguments. "I am a little afraid of our stepping out of our proper place in paying agents to travel in the United States."

c39 Mount Pleasant, Liverpool. The writer has arrived safely and avoided sea-sickness in spite of a "desparate swell." Has arranged to sail by the Champlain; details the cost of the passage for wife, children, servant and himself. Has delivered the addressee's trunk and letter to the steward on board the Algonquin. Referring to the New York newspapers, the writer expresses an optimistic view of the riots, which prove nothing but a pretext for thieves and ruffians to plunder with impunity. Hopes the Abolitionists may remain firm. Is anxious to hear from the addressee before he sails. Sends regards to William Smith.

[Liverpool, England] The writer explains why he did not sign the Reply to the Boston Invitation. Thinks that Slavery is a crime of the State and that it can only be destroyed by law. Says that if he inherited slaves he would turn them over to the the State. Thinks that ordinary private manumission is detrimental to the best interests of the slaves. It allows a slaveholder to salve his conscience and does not call for any attempt on the part of the slaveholder to rehabilitate the slave. Thinks that refusing an invitation because of the personal conduct of a member of the inviting organization is a "somewhat far-fetched scrupulosity." «Upper Clapton» The writer plans to invite some friends to meet members of the Bristol & Clifton Ladies' Anti-Slavery Association. She wants her friends to meet real Abolitionists instead of pro-Slavery orthodox ministers. Some people she knows think that "no one who does not sign the creed & code of H. C. Wright" could claim to be an American Abolitionist. Describes her friends briefly.

To «Mrs.» Maria (Weston) Chapman» No.37

«Oxford Terrace» The writer tells what is on her mind in regard to a school for colored pupils planned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. Agrees with the addressee, but considers that "this is Mrs. Stowe's affair" and that she will probably have her own way in any case. The writer is in favor of the school plan and believes that the education of free colored people is a step toward their freedom. Believes the addressee not "quite moonstruck enough" to believe that she can induce Mrs. Stowe to deliver the money raised by her friends "for her to use as she thinks best" into the hands of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Suggests ad[illegible]ing Mrs. Stowe to place the money in the hands of truste[illegible] be used for the education of colored men or women in an[illegible]chool or college in America

«47 Queensborough Terrace, Kensington, W.,(London)» The writer replies to Miss Field's inquiry as to where she could find an opportunity to obtain stage experience in England. The writer says she used to have a great deal of influence, but now there are only travelling companies and many established actors and actresses looking for parts. Advises Miss Field to stick to the stage in America. Says she will try to get something for Miss Field. Tells how she got started on her stage career. Has been ill. Condemns the modern stage. c5 Oxford Terrace (London). The writer is puzzled by the date on the addressee's letter; wonders if she has received the writer's letter enclosing the account of the meeting at the home of the Duchess of Sutherland. "Lord Carlisle would not do anything. Lord Shaftesbury has meddled foolishly-orthodoxy has got into it." The addressee's notion that the Memorial could be sent to the Anti-Slavery Society "with Garrison's name attached" is impossible. "The old goose of a Lord Shaftesbury says it must be put into the hands of the American Minister"a plan at which the writer laughed immoderately. If the true Garrisonian aboliti[illegible]ts had carried out their plan, the writer could have gently [illegible]ered it into the right place, "but the orthodox Lord has killed it, the dear Duchess of c6 Albion St., Hyde Park (London). The writer says she has been ill for a long time. Praises the friendship and care of Miss Montgomery. Refers to a contribution of money. Received a letter about William and Ellen Craft. The writer has written to Garrison, asking for the Liberator. Thinks that the Webster who was hung was better than Daniel Webster. The Fugitive Slave Law is doing good work for the Anti-Slavery cause. Describes a visit to Joanna Baillie, the poetess. Tells about Miss Montgomery's family.
